Simple Steps to a Custom Family Tree
1. Research, research!
If your here, you’ve probably done this part, and you want a special, beautiful way to share what you’ve found.
The easiest, and most common way of sharing your information is by organizing it into a GEDCOM file. Again, you’ve probably already done this part, but if you still have all your family tree information scribbled in note pads, or if it is all in your head, you need to organize your information into one of these files. You can download programs that help you with this at many websites - some of these programs are free! (https://wiki.familysearch.org/en/PAF_and_Other_Genealogy_Software is a great place to start for lists of the most common family tree software.) I can work from scribbles on note pads if necessary, but organizing in a GEDCOM file really helps make relationships clear, prevents mistakes, and is a great way to archive your data for future generations.
2. Collect Pictures

Our trees are special, because we include your favorite family portraits. Collect your pictures. If they are already in digital format, you can simply email them to us, or burn them to a CD and mail them to us. We can work with almost every type of photo file.

If your pictures are printed, you will need to scan them in order to send the digital file to us. Save the highest quality image possible, because it gives us a better image to work with. If you don’t have access to a scanner, most print shops will do this for you.

You can also mail the printed images to us and we will scan them for you. We charge $5 per image for this service. We will return the images to you with your completed tree.

Don’t worry if some of your pictures are color, and some are black and white. We can adjust each image to match the color scheme of the tree you choose.

We also offer digital photo restoration, so if the only image you have of an ancestor is creased or folded, we can do our best to repair it for you. (Please refer to our price list for the cost of this service.)
3. Once you have picked your tree, we will start to create your image.

We have several options ranging from small trees displaying just a few generations to larger trees that can go back many generations. Visit our gallery and price list for all the options!

Once we’ve completed work on your tree, we will email you a link to the image for your approval. After you approve the image, we will mail your print!

That’s all there is to it!
